

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A furnace probe measuring system and method used to measure conditions, such as wear, within an electric furnace. A position assembly is configured to attach to a portion of an electric furnace. A probe assembly is moveably coupled to the position assembly and includes a location sensing portion configured to adjust to a location. A measurement device is coupled to the location sensing portion and indicates the location of the location sensing portion to determine wear.

I:\atty\cdw\209127US23\209127US Spec.rtf